(By Mrs. Rayford Stephens)

FARM AND HOME PROGRAM ENJOYED BY LISTENERS

The Kinship Farm and Home Program for April as broadcast from WIRB emphasized the Easter season. As regular features, Mrs. Rayford Stephens read the Kinship news and the string band played several numbers. A trio composed of Misses Jane Donaldson, Betty Clark and Wilene Clark rendered a special number. An Easter playlet "Where is your Carpenter Now" was rendered as a special Easter feature. The playlet was adapted for radio by Mr. Jack Coleman, program director, from an original play by Mrs. Mildred Montgomery, who many here remember as the author of the Christmas shows play here last year. The cast included Mr. Jack Coleman, Mrs. Willie Coon, Miss Jean Meacham, Mrs. Emily Cain, and Mr. Charles Mallory. Miss Meacham furnished the music for the playlet and is accompanist for the other musical number on the program.

James Allen, local FFA president.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Bradberry had as their guests last Thursday and Friday Mrs. Bradberry's mother and sister, Mrs. W. A. Daugherty, and Mrs. W. R. Carr and daughter, Connie, of Auburn; also their sister, Mrs. D. L. Kilbourn and son, Johnny of Opelika.

Mrs. W. C. Willis, accompanied by Mrs. Jim Parker of the Basin community, recently spent several days in Tallahassee with Mr. and Mrs. Allen Willis.

Mrs. George Gentry, Miss Betty Gentry and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Horton and Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Moore of Montgomery spent the week-end in Cullman visiting Dr. and Mrs. Roy W. Williams and family. Mrs. Williams and family, Nina and Roy Jr., returned home with Mrs. Gentry to spend this week-end.

As the church audience gathered for the service, the pastor, Rev. E. W. Williams, said that the service was a very beautiful one, and that the church was very proud to have it.

What Was the Trouble? THE TROUBLE with these people, the thing that made their worship sinful, was not some defect in the act of worship itself. There was nothing they could do, Amos can think of nothing they could do, to "improve the worship program" as we would say.

The trouble with these people was not in church at all. It was on the outside. Almost alone in his time, a voice in the wilderness—for no one paid him any real attention—Amos, speaking for God, told the Sabbath-keeping, church-going, hymn-singing, tithing citizens of Israel an important truth.

Religion, in short, cannot be shut off from the rest of life, as if it were a separate compartment. It is not something that is thought and as too many people now think, worship is simply a good if it is not lined up with a good life, a life good by intention and effort.

Jesus understood this same point. If you are at the very altar of God, in the act of offering him a gift, and remember that your brother has something against you, go and make matters right with your brother before you offer the gift. See your brother before you see God. Or else God will not be at home to you.

The revival meeting being conducted at the Assembly of God Church will continue through next Sunday night. The Rev. W. W. Vaughan of Andalusia is conducting the series of meetings.

The revival will begin at the Methodist church next Sunday, April 30, at 11:00 o'clock. Dr. E. C. Moore of Montgomery will be the visiting speaker. Everyone is invited to attend these services.

When Worship Is Wicked

Lesson for April 30, 1950

DO NOT THINK for a moment you can stand before some Recording Angel, with a memorandum in your hand showing the number of times you had attended church last year, and expect to see the angel break out into a beaming smile. "Fifty-two trips to church, 32 times on Sunday, 18 times on Wednesday, 10 times on Friday, and a book of complete contempt."

"Fifty-two sins," by Dr. Foreman might say, "Next case!"

Can It Be a Sin To Go To Church?

Church-going is not necessarily a good act. Worship may be a quite wicked deed. Most people are slow getting that into their heads. They think that one act of worship on Sunday will somehow make up for a lot of bad behavior Monday through Saturday inclusive. But it is not so. The first person in history to say so and to say that worship need not be good and can even be very bad, was none other than the prophet Amos.

The Israelites to whom he spoke were what we would call a church-going people; they were certainly temple-going. They followed the same ritual that was used in Jerusalem, they offered tithes and sacrifices, they kept the Sabbath, they attended the feasts and they observed the fasts and they sang the sacred hymns.

Yet Amos denounces the whole business, and condemns the worshippers as guilty sinners. What was wrong?

It looked All Right READERS of the Old Testament will remember that at Bethel, where the Israelites had one of their principal temples, golden calves had been set up to represent Jehovah's God. Now even though the people worshipped the true God, surely it was wrong to worship him in the form of an animal.

The form of their worship was all wrong, much further wrong than any form of Christian worship is today; yet Amos does not condemn them for worshipping in this mistaken way. Never once anywhere does he say a word about the golden calves. And if he does not say anything about a big thing like gold calves, still less does he have anything severe to say about less important departures from "good form" in worship.

He does not condemn the people for having the wrong hymn-book, or for not having a good choir. He hasn't a word of blame for non-attendance at worship; indeed he comes down hardest on those who do not attend.

The park area around the Williams fish pond is beginning to look very pretty. Mrs. R. E. Williams has given the Community Council permission to use the grounds as a public park and the beautification committee of the Council, with the cooperation of local citizens are doing a splendid job of making it into the charm spot of the town.

Forty-two azaleas along with a number of other plants and shrubs have been set out. A good portion of the walks have been sanded. Five concrete tables and benches have been poured and will soon be set up for use; and plans have been made for two barbecue pits to be erected.

The fish pond has been drained and is ready to be cleaned and restocked with fish.

The park is to be named in memory of the late Mr. Williams. The Reddick E. Williams Park.

Everyone who will, is urged to cooperate with the Beautification committee in doing the work planned. Be on the watch out for announcements of community work days.

The grammar school will sponsor a May Festival Monday night, May 1st at 7:30 o'clock in the high school auditorium. This promises to be a very beautiful affair and is one of the highlights of the entire school year.

LEADERS of the Firemen's union have called a nationwide strike starting with four great railroads on April 26. These railroads are the New York Central, Pennsylvania, Santa Fe, and Southern.

The union claim that a second fireman is needed on grounds of safety is sheer hypocrisy. Safety has been dragged into this dispute only in an unsuccessful effort to give a cloak of respectability to vicious feather-bedding demands.

After a careful study of the first demands of this union, a Presidential Fact Finding Board on May 21, 1943, reported to President Roosevelt that there was no need for an extra fireman on diesel locomotives.

Again, on September 19, 1949, after a second hearing on the union leaders' demands, a second Board reported to President Truman that "there presently exists no need for an additional fireman... upon either the ground of safety or that of efficiency and economy of operation."

Safety Record of Diesels is Outstandingly Good Although the railroads accepted the Board findings, the union leaders have brazenly rejected them. They represent that an

Fancy Finery Draws Frowns When Worn By Czech Women

PRAGUE.—Fancy finery is a hazard to the Czech woman conforming to the "popular" fashion. This year's winter style is a dark colored coat, slacks, high felt or leather boots and a scarf wrapped around her head. This combination may look well on tall, slim women but is not particularly suited to the Slav figure of broad hip and cheek bones. Scarves have a long tradition in this country, being part of many peasant national costumes, but city women have never taken kindly to them.

The assumption of power by the Communists has much to do with scarf wearing, not only because they look proletarian but because Communist women wear red scarves at demonstrations and meetings.

The fashion of wearing slacks in great measure a result of a new marriage and family law which guarantee women complete equality with men.

Czech fashions as represented in domestic magazines are simple and tasteful—if not too original. But there is a great difference between what is shown in the fashion magazines and what actually is sold in the shops.

White House to Have Extra Guest Rooms Following Alteration

WASHINGTON.—There will be room for extra guests when President and Mrs. Harry S. Truman get back into the White House. It is slated to occur sometime in 1951. There will also be room for all those things that some women have never taken kindly to them.

The repair job is completed. A mansion will have 77 rooms and the story basement. The 159-year-old structure is to be completely old inside. It now has only renovations and no basement.

60 engineers have disclosed that 80 additional rooms would be built on the top, or fourth floor, built by for use by guests. This would have been used for maid's floors and guests who could not be accommodated in the limited space on the third floor.

The third floor is used by the President and his family.

Presidents have been known on rare occasions to sleep in the "ratios" to permit very important persons to occupy their bedrooms.

Maj. Gen. Glen E. Edgeron, one of the engineers attached to the renovation commission, said the new White House should last 100 years or more. Congress has appropriated nearly $5 million dollars for the whole job.

The commission is now considering how to dispose of hundreds of pieces of scrap and other materials salvaged from the historic structure without running afoul of the Congressional dictum that there be no "commercial exploitation" of the White House.

General Edgeron said the commission might ask new legislation to defray the cost of distributing the souvenirs. Care must be taken to authenticate these, he explained, to avoid an avalanche of fakes being sold to the gullible.

Oh, yes, that was it. It was all working out fine now. Laura had asked her college roommate, Doris LaPlante, down for the weekend. Of course, that was she. How stupid of him.

So Bryant walked around the pool and was introduced. He looked deep into the twin black pools that were Doris' eyes, and apologized. His voice sounded odd, but that, of course, was because he was thinking that here was the girl he had been waiting for.

Then he almost groaned aloud. Doris had looked up and said, it was quite all right and she really should have introduced herself, but he added so much about the scene, standing over there so straight and silent. It was the sound of her voice that made Bryant groan; for he remembered that it was all a dream and that Doris would soon be gone.

Then suddenly it was night, and they were once more in the garden. There was a full moon and a gentle breeze and music drifting down on the still air from somewhere back of the marble bench.

A week, two weeks, had gone by—Bryant wasn't sure when the first meeting in the garden. He had a dim recollection that they were glorious weeks of riding and golfing and swimming and dancing—all with Doris.

It WAS ONLY OCCASIONALLY now that Bryant remembered it was all a dream. The dream of waking up didn't affect him quite so poignantly. That is to say, it didn't affect him until this night when they were alone in the garden. Then he was seized with a sudden panicky sensation.

And so quite abruptly Bryant turned and said without preliminary: "Doris, darling, I love you. I know this is all a dream, therefore I'm telling you now before I wake up. I've waited all my life for such a girl as you. It seems unreal that you'd come to me only in a dream."

And Doris turned up her face to his, with the moon making shadows of her eyes, and said: "I love you, too, Bryant, and I'm glad you waited for me. I hardly know what I would have done had I discovered you belonged to some one else."

Bryant thought this over and decided that the dream had turned out just the way he would have ordered. He'd better wake himself up, he thought, before he did something to spoil it. But before he could pinch himself, which was the conventional way of waking oneself from a dream, Doris laid her head on his shoulder.

Bryant looked down at the golden head. "Doris," he said brokenly, "this is all a dream, and in a minute you'll be gone and I'll find myself alone. You're not real."

But Doris laughed softly, and nudged closer. Bryant almost put his arm about her slim shoulders. She was there, close against him. Her lips were upturned, and as Bryant bent to kiss them, he knew that when again he opened his eyes, she'd still be there—and would always be there.

By Richard Hill Wilkinson

BRYANT DREAMED a dream. He was in a garden. A beautiful girl sat on a bench, and smiled at him across a pond filled with goldfish and pond lilies. Bright sunshine filtered down through shade trees and reflected the gold in the girl's hair.

Bryant knew that, according to all good dreams, he was supposed to do something—possibly to walk around the pool and bow gallantly before the girl.

He began to wonder if he didn't know somewhat like an idiot standing there.

It was then that he heard footsteps on the flagstone path that connected the garden with the wide, screened-in porch of the house. He looked up to find Laura, his sister, coming into the garden. He was glad that Laura had come. For Laura knew all about dreams and could tell him what to do.

3 Minute Fiction

Oh, yes, that was it. It was all working out fine now. Laura had asked her college roommate, Doris LaPlante, down for the weekend. Of course, that was she. How stupid of him.

So Bryant walked around the pool and was introduced. He looked deep into the twin black pools that were Doris' eyes, and apologized. His voice sounded odd, but that, of course, was because he was thinking that here was the girl he had been waiting for.

Then he almost groaned aloud. Doris had looked up and said, it was quite all right and she really should have introduced herself, but he added so much about the scene, standing over there so straight and silent. It was the sound of her voice that made Bryant groan; for he remembered that it was all a dream and that Doris would soon be gone.

Then suddenly it was night, and they were once more in the garden. There was a full moon and a gentle breeze and music drifting down on the still air from somewhere back of the marble bench.

A week, two weeks, had gone by—Bryant wasn't sure when the first meeting in the garden. He had a dim recollection that they were glorious weeks of riding and golfing and swimming and dancing—all with Doris.

It WAS ONLY OCCASIONALLY now that Bryant remembered it was all a dream. The dream of waking up didn't affect him quite so poignantly. That is to say, it didn't affect him until this night when they were alone in the garden. Then he was seized with a sudden panicky sensation.

And so quite abruptly Bryant turned and said without preliminary: "Doris, darling, I love you. I know this is all a dream, therefore I'm telling you now before I wake up. I've waited all my life for such a girl as you. It seems unreal that you'd come to me only in a dream."

And Doris turned up her face to his, with the moon making shadows of her eyes, and said: "I love you, too, Bryant, and I'm glad you waited for me. I hardly know what I would have done had I discovered you belonged to some one else."

Bryant thought this over and decided that the dream had turned out just the way he would have ordered. He'd better wake himself up, he thought, before he did something to spoil it. But before he could pinch himself, which was the conventional way of waking oneself from a dream, Doris laid her head on his shoulder.

Bryant looked down at the golden head. "Doris," he said brokenly, "this is all a dream, and in a minute you'll be gone and I'll find myself alone. You're not real."

But Doris laughed softly, and nudged closer. Bryant almost put his arm about her slim shoulders. She was there, close against him. Her lips were upturned, and as Bryant bent to kiss them, he knew that when again he opened his eyes, she'd still be there—and would always be there.

She'll Be Back

A MAN, in his carefree bachelor days, had been very fond of a Washington restaurant which specialized in waffles with honey. Year after year he had journeyed to the place to get the delectable viand; so, when he finally married, he decided to take his wife there, in order to share the pleasure with her. He did not tell her what was coming; merely ordering an excellent meal, with two orders of waffles.

The meal came, the waffles came, but there were two small pitchers of near-ripe syrup, and no honey.

He called the waitress over, and whispered, loud enough for his wife to hear: "Where's my honey?"

The waitress beamed intelligently. "She's on her vacation now, sir," was her answer.

TOO MUCH DISTRACTION

"Did your garden do well this summer?"

"No; every time my husband started digging he found a lot of worms, so he'd quit and go fishing."

Mr. J. A. Harris attended the Misses Betty Stephens and An-Postumers Convention in Mon-nie Lois Sawyer spent the week-tgomery Monday and Tuesday, end at home.

WHO'S WATERING THE ELEPHANT?

DEMOCRATS VERSUS DIXIECRATS

Shall Alabama Stay Democratic Or Join The Splinter Party?

The issue in this campaign is not States' Rights, or Civil Rights, or FEPC, or Southern traditions.

Loyal Alabama Democrats feel about these things just like the Dixiecrats claim they feel. The difference is that the Dixiecrats can't do anything about it. But Alabama Democrats have used their POWER AND INFLUENCE IN THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY to protect State's Rights and promote Alabama's welfare. AS DEMOCRATS they have helped defeat FEPC and the other so-called civil rights bills. AS DEMOCRATS they have successfully fought off all anti-Southern legislation in the national Congress.

The issue in the campaign is simply this: Shall the people of Alabama continue their long and successful fight to protect their rights and their traditions from within the ranks of the regular Democratic Party? Or shall the people of Alabama entrust their protection and their welfare to the weak and ineffective Dixiecrat splinter party?

There is positive proof that the Dixiecrat leaders are working under cover with the REPUBLICAN PARTY and OTHER SELFISH GROUPS THAT WANT SPECIAL PRIVILEGES.

Loyal Alabama voters have smelled out this unsavory backing for the Dixiecrats. It has made the people determined to DEFEAT THE DIXIECRATS once and for all. Hundreds of thousands of Alabama voters—farmers, businessmen, laborers, factory workers, lawyers, doctors, teachers, housewives and voters in every walk of life—are determined to stay within the National Democratic Party. The people believe this is the best way to protect their own interest and the future of their children, and the best way to serve their State and their country.

Walked Many Miles

W. F. Fortner, Spanish-American War Veteran, returned last Tuesday morning from Atlanta, Ga., where he underwent a physical check-up. He said the Veterans Hospital is of such huge dimensions that he walked many miles getting from one part of the building to another. He said he did more walking than he had done for years and was completely worn out. The hospital physician assured Mr. Fortner that the ailments he feared might become serious, was nothing to be alarmed about.

This Is Your Paper 'Want Ad' Market Place

By William R. Nelson

PEOPLE who have visited market places in foreign lands find them picturesque, quaint and colorful. If they had studied them carefully they would have found them also most inefficient. To sell things there it is necessary to transport them to the market place, display them, wait for customers, and take home what remains unsold. Often considerably deteriorated in value.

Perhaps one of the very real contributors to our high American standard of living is the greater efficiency of our less picturesque market places, the classified ad columns of our papers.

Classified advertising brings together the seller and buyer without the necessity of meeting at a market place. And goods that change hands need be moved only once, need not be exposed to deteriorating forces. Neither buyer nor seller need waste time awaiting the other.

People wishing to buy things not offered in the want ad columns can generally find it by inserting a "Wanted" announcement, thereby obtaining what they want when they want it.

Classified or want ad advertising gets its name, of course, from the way such information is grouped under headings.

Included in this every day pathos and drama, its failures and successes, its comedy and its tragedy. Even such items as "Eggs For Sale" may herald an up or down in someone's life.

What a story behind "Exchange, set of golf clubs for baby buggy."

Timeliness and Convenience

When solving a problem, certain matters of technique may be borne in mind. Number one is timeliness. Ice skates do not sell well in summer. Number two is convenience. Make it easy to respond to your ad. And number three is adequate description. The more you tell, the more you sell is an excellent bit of advice.

If tempted to keep the cost low by being too brief, remember that your reader knows only what the advertisement says, so telling a complete story in one way to assure success. Remember also how much time you are saving, by not having to go to a market place, and by being able to spend some of that saving on additional wants in your classified advertisement.

Douglas Smith, N. C. Green Killed When Automobile Overturns

Two young men, Douglas Smith, 28, and Nathan C. Green, 31, both of Phenix City, were killed instantly Sunday when their car in which they were riding overturned about four miles from Scale. Highway patrolmen reported that indications were that the car was running at too great a speed to negotiate a curve, overturning and rolling a distance of 84 feet before coming to rest bottom up. Both victims were thrown from the car and were instantly killed.

Mr. Smith was the husband of the former Miss Irene Parker, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Broome Parker of Elba. They have been residing in Phenix City for several years. Mr. Smith drove a bus for the Capital Motor Lines for quite a while and was well known here.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Irene Parker Smith, of Phenix City; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Smith of Brundidge; one brother, Luther, Brundidge; one sister, Mrs. Mary Lynn Holmes, of Troy.

Funeral services for Mr. Smith were held Tuesday morning at ten o'clock at the Richmond Baptist church near Brundidge, of which he was a member, with Grand Clark officiating. Burial was in the Richmond cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Julius A. Young and Mr. and Mrs. Horace W. McDougall of Montgomery, and Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Young spent the week at the Sumner cabin at Seagrove, Fla.

Big Anyway

Ran McCollough reports that he and mayor L. P. Mullins were riding near the Murphy Cox home on Maldivin Hill on the Elba-Branley highway when they saw a bobcat about half as big as a mule, "a little mule," Mayor Mullins, when asked to substantiate Mr. McCollough's statement, said he thought Ran probably was exaggerating a little, though it was a big cat.

Sincerely yours, truly

"The Dixiecrats are spluttering. Some make croaking noises, some make rasping noises and some make scratching noises, but common sense and common decency is an overture of the fringe."

Dixiecrats are not to be abused, for in 1948 they represented the sentiment of this state. As had been said, they are stout men who must be given credit for a stout try. There is nothing sacred about the Democratic Party, and the Dixiecrats are not heretics for assailing it. Dixiecrats should not be abused—but they should be explained.

Our analysis of the high-pitched voices of the Dixiecrats at the present time is that they are the voices of men hungry for personal vindication.

Such men as Mr. McCorvey can't go home again. They know that their plan for defeating the Democratic party in 1948 was a bust. They talked with some warrant of getting 127 electoral votes and all they got was 38. It was perhaps worth trying, but it failed.

Their fantasy is now recognized. Their followers were sobered by the victory of the Democratic Party in 1948. They know that the Dixiecrats are an actual advantage to the party in the Northwest, giving the party a dragon to slay. It is now seen that even such states as Georgia and Tennessee won't come along.

There is no way for Mr. McCorvey and his associates to be repatriated into the Democratic Party. They cannot be Republicans. Therefore, unless there is a Dixiecrat Party, they are all homeless.

If the state votes to fight it out within the party, it will have repudiated the leadership of Mr. McCorvey and his associates. You can scarcely blame him as a socialist and the federal debt under this apprehension and restoring it.

They are, to explain them further, all the more belittled, because they are frightened. They are lacking support. Only one congressman, and a retiring one

"Mother Hubbard" Cabinet

Ill-Prepared for Every Emergency

Wise mothers are never caught with empty medicine chests, because emergencies don't wait for a trip to the corner drugist. Keeping the family medicine cabinet in order and well-stocked is a wise precaution. Recent surveys show that only about one out of three American homes is prepared to handle the emergencies that commonly arise in families. If your cabinet lacks these essential items, you are unprepared for home accidents.

What Is a Newspaper?

By William R. Nelson

EVERY AMERICAN old enough to read is familiar with the home town newspaper. Yet, how much do the readers know about it? How well do they understand its problems and actions; its place in their lives, in the community, and in the world? Just what is a home town newspaper?

Dictionaries have varied definitions of "newspaper," but none contains the full meaning of the word. Even Journalism's "Hall of Fame" editors have given widely differing definitions of what we in the United States call newspapers.

A home town newspaper is a paper, such as this one, but it is more than that. It is a vital part of all of the others. And more, too.

The local newspaper is a mirror of its community, a clearing house for ideas; a library of local information; a market place; a sentry constantly watching over civic and official affairs; and a partnership in which the owners, the advertisers, the readers and the community all have interests. In addition, it is a manufacturing plant for production of printed matter.

Unlike a food store, it cannot feed its community's people. But its advertising columns can nurture the food store.

It cannot render banking service, but newspapers have been banks' best protection against the damage misinformation or misjudgment might cause.

W.S.C.S. MEETS

The W.S.C.S. of the Methodist church met at the home of Mrs. W. M. Ringford Monday afternoon. Assisting Mrs. Ringford as hostesses were Mrs. Will Vaughan and Mrs. Lamar Rainer.

The Scripture used was taken from the 4th chapter of Matthew. Mrs. Emory Corbett sang by Mrs. Fred Davis and Mrs. Nell Cooper. The meeting closed with a prayer by the leader.

A social hour followed during which the hostess served a salad plate to 20 members.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Pinckard and family visited Mr. and Mrs. Murray Pinckard in Brantley Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Eric Paul were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Colley Pittman in New Brockton last Sunday.

Rocket Moon Trip

In Next 50 Years

Seen by Scientist

LINCOLN, NEB. — Say about 50 years from now, a space ship may make the 240,000-mile trip to the moon and return in about 24 hours.

The idea of J. P. Colbert, professor of civil engineering at the University of Nebraska, is one that has been in the mind of many scientists for years. The problem of fueling a giant rocket ship for the expedition by about the year 2,000.

According to Colbert's predictions, the ship will take off at an almost perpendicular angle and hurtle through the air at the necessary seven-mile-a-second "escape speed." Once the ship is clear of the air surrounding the earth, he said, its rockets can be cut off and it can coast through space a part of the time.

He estimated the journey will take about 10 hours.

The aircraft will have to land stern first, Colbert said, using its rocket motors to break the impact of the landing.

The arrival on the moon will be timed for the "day" just as that planet's 28-hour "day" is beginning, Colbert said. The temperature on the moon is the better than boiling point of 214 degrees when the sun is directly overhead, he noted, and the two week long "nights" get as cold as 215 degrees below zero. Therefore men must plan to arrive at the most temperate time, he explained.

Astronomers believe men can remain safely on the moon one or two hours before beginning the return voyage, Colbert said.

The take-off from the moon will be far easier, he said, since its gravity is only one-sixth as strong as the earth's.

Unmanned, guided missiles undoubtedly will be used on test flights before a staffed expedition tries it, Colbert said. If these rockets were filled with an explosive, colorful substance to spatter the surrounding area, the landing could be seen by strong telescopes on earth, he thinks.

Colbert said it is reasonable to assume the last half of the century will see development of the fuel needed for the trip.

"Look what we've done in the first half," he said. "If anyone had tried to describe television or jet planes in 1900, people would have thought he was crazy."

Woman's Tongue Sends Man Back to Chain Gang
COLUMBUS, OHIO. — The couple upstairs were arguing and their conversation suddenly became interesting to Patrolman James A. Hicks.

The off-duty policeman reached for his phone and dialled headquarters after he heard the woman upstairs shout:

"You know where you belong? Right back on that Georgia chain gang you got away from!"

Long Miles Just Routine

To Car Road Test Pilot

NEW YORK — Washington to St. Louis, 900 miles; Dallas to Denver, 800 miles; New York to Atlanta, 875 miles. These distances represent only two months of tough, hard driving for the "speedster" of tourists.

But for the road-test drivers, such distances are just a day's work. For example, one group of test drivers recently set a record of better than 100 miles per day for 70 days—and that in the blistering heat along the Mexican border that ranged as high as 110 degrees. Fourteen hours every day, six days a week, at speed averaging 80 miles per hour, six cars were pushed over a 20-mile route.

The pace was maintained for more than 80,000 miles—a distance equal to five years' mileage for the average family car.

The terrific driving record was made in road-testing performance of a new motor oil developed by Continental Oil company. In a test-down of the motor at the end of the long run, measurements of moving parts under observation of technicians of the Southwest Research Institute showed no wear of any consequence. In fact, actually measurement with highly sensitive instruments showed the wear averaged less than one one-hundredth of an inch on cylinders and crankshafts. Original factory machining marks were still visible on piston rings.

Another result of the road test was the demonstration economy operation. Gasoline mileage for the last 5,000 miles was as good as for the first 5,000—actually there was an average difference for the fleet of only 4/100 of a mile per gallon, or 184 feet.

Patrolman Miszewski notified the detective bureau. The license number was checked. A few minutes later, Patrolman Raymond Bednarok and Henry Kubak were on their way to Mandi's apartment.

Police Find, And Deliver

Stolen Car, Owner Sleeps

MILWAUKEE, WIS. — A for New York who had lived here only two months got a sample of the efficiency of Milwaukee police recently.

So impressed was the new Milwaukee, Adolph Mandi, that he telephoned the newspaper to tell about it.

"Imagine," said Mandi. "They woke me up and said my car had been stolen and they had recovered it. I didn't even know it was stolen. Not only that, but they were extremely courteous. Extremely courteous."

Mandi's car had been parked in front of his apartment. The thief lacking an ignition key, tried to start it by crossing the wires. Unsuccessful, he stopped a taxicab driver and asked for a push.

The cabby pushed the car for blocks, but it wouldn't start. Disgusted, the cabby halted. He lifted the car hood and looked at the engine. He saw the crossed wires and concluded that he had been aiding a thief. He stated, hoping a policeman might come along.

When Patrolman Joseph Miszewski showed up, the cabby handed him the keys. A few minutes later, the cabby hailed him.

Patrolman Miszewski notified the detective bureau. The license number was checked. A few minutes later, Patrolman Raymond Bednarok and Henry Kubak were on their way to Mandi's apartment.

ELBERT BOOZER LEADS AS VOTERS

GET SET TO CHOOSE NEXT GOVERNOR

Anniston Man Speaks To More

People Than Any Other Candidate

Elbert Boozer's feat of drawing the biggest crowds in the larger cities has also been duplicated in the smaller towns, newspaper and radio men as well as political observers say as the Anniston candidate rides the political trail in closing out his campaign.

The crowds that greeted Boozer successively in Tusculosa, Mobile, Montgomery, Birmingham, Gadsden and Huntsville, have outnumbered the ones who came to hear any other candidate in the race for governor, and his home-coming in Anniston last Saturday drew the largest crowd that has ever heard a political speech there.

"The trend to Boozer in more than 60 counties in Alabama has been the most remarkable that has happened in Alabama in many years. Old line political observers are comparing his gain in popularity with the voters with the spectacular rise made by Governor B. M. Miller when the Camden judge won the governorship."

That Boozer is leading in the governor's race is attributed to his sound and successful business background and planned program of progress he has offered the people in every county in Alabama.

The Anniston candidate has been bearing down on his plans for new industries and new payrolls in every town and city through an active State Industrial Board that would work with city and county officials in obtaining new industries; new cash crops (Pd. FARM ISLES—This northern Indiana farm was neatly, completely isolated by Kaukauna river flood that ousted 300 families.

So impressed was the new Milwaukee, Adolph Mandi, that he telephoned the newspaper to tell about it.

"Imagine," said Mandi. "They woke me up and said my car had been stolen and they had recovered it. I didn't even know it was stolen. Not only that, but they were extremely courteous. Extremely courteous."

Mandi's car had been parked in front of his apartment. The thief lacking an ignition key, tried to start it by crossing the wires. Unsuccessful, he stopped a taxicab driver and asked for a push.

The cabby pushed the car for blocks, but it wouldn't start. Disgusted, the cabby halted. He lifted the car hood and looked at the engine. He saw the crossed wires and concluded that he had been aiding a thief. He stated, hoping a policeman might come along.

When Patrolman Joseph Miszewski showed up, the cabby handed him the keys. A few minutes later, the cabby hailed him.

Patrolman Miszewski notified the detective bureau. The license number was checked. A few minutes later, Patrolman Raymond Bednarok and Henry Kubak were on their way to Mandi's apartment.

PRESENTS INTERESTING FACTS ABOUT ALABAMA

FORT TOULOUSE

Fort Toulouse was built by the British in 1764 and surrendered to the British in 1763. During the British trader days, there were some 30 houses here and its inhabitants had large herds of cattle ranging in the 3000-acre pasture surrounding the town. Sam McNea, brother-in-law of William Weatherford, half brother Indian Chief, lived here and his son was the first West Point cadet from Alabama. It was also here that William Weatherford surrendered to Andrew Jackson after the battle of Horseshoe Bend.

Case Of Forgery

By Richard Hill Wilkinson

THERE'S A CURIOUS TWIST to this case, Inspector. George Jackson, president of the Mobile National Bank was saying, "Anthony Page who deposited $25,000 with us on Monday, decided to cash his right name at the last moment."

"His right name? What do you mean?"

"Anthony Page is a fiction writer. His real name is Edward Thurston. Recently a distant uncle died and left him a small fortune—$25,000—to be exact. Page consulted me about investments. I advised him to invest in anything while the market was in its present unstable condition. He agreed, and decided to deposit the money in our bank until things looked better.

"He came in early Monday morning and made the deposit, deciding to use his real name of Edward Thurston at the last moment. Wednesday, a check for $5,000, signed by Edward Thurston, was presented and cashed by one of our tellers.

"I have questioned Thurston. He says he left for Chicago directly after depositing the money, and swears he told no one about his decision to use his real name. He had signed no checks against his account!"

Inspector Kent Clifford reflectively lit a cigar.

"You say that Thurston made his deposit early on Monday morning?"

"As far as I can find out," the president offered, "there were only two men in the bank while Thurston was here." He handed the officer a slip of paper. "Here are their names and addresses. Both are well known to all of us."

Inspector Clifford studied the names. "Now tell me what your clerk was up to."

"Nothing unusual. Getting things ready to start the day. Making sure the deposit blanks, pens, blotters, ink, etc. were on the lobby counters. Arranging their cash."

Inspector Clifford snapped his fingers. "That's it. Come on, we're going to call on these two men."

The first call was on a man named Simon in the suburban town of Shoreland, Mrs. Simons answered their knock.

"Harry is away. Is there anything I can do?"

Following previous instructions from Clifford, Jackson said: "We made a mistake in his monthly statement last week. Do you happen to know whether he has it handy?"

They followed her into the house. There was a small den off the living room containing a desk. Mrs. Simons began opening drawers and peering into them. For a moment Inspector Clifford stood idly by. Then suddenly he stepped forward and snatched something from one of the drawers.

Before the startled eyes of Mrs. Simons and the astonished gaze of President Jackson, he strode over to a window, studied the thing.

Simon's our man," he said. "This proves it. Now—" He broke off as the front door opened and closed.

Inspector Clifford finished speaking. Simons, a tall spare man, appeared in the doorway, stopped and looked about in bewilderment.

"I'm Inspector Clifford of police headquarters," the officer said, stepping forward. "Simons, I arrest you for forging Edward Thurston's name to a check for $5,000."

Simon's eyes grew wide. The color drained from his cheeks. For a moment he stared as though struck, then impulsively turned and bolted.

Anticipating the move, Inspector Clifford leaped forward. His fingers caught hold of the tall man's collar, and yanked him backward.

"Quite simple when explained," Clifford was saying later. "Simons probably needed money. He was in the bank when Page made his deposit, and picked up the blotter Page had used when signing his name. It was a new blotter, and the imprint therefore was definitely easy to copy for forgery purposes."

HEALTH HINTS for LIVESTOCK

AMERICAN FOUNDATION FOR ANIMAL HEALTH

POISONOUS PLANTS THREAT TO STOCK

Poisonous plants cause American livestock raisers many million dollars in death losses and sickness each year.

Trouble of this type is more apt to occur among young animals—calves, lambs, and kids.

One great danger is that of the nightshade, larkspur or young hollyhock. These plants contain specific poisons. Another large group of growing forage of the sorghum family such as Sudan or arrow grass and cane may contain prussic acid, especially if frozen, stored or wilted. Other plants sensitize animals to the rays of sunlight, causing serious skin trouble or swollen heads.

If a livestock owner suspects that a pasture may contain poisonous plants, he can cut down his risk by allowing one of his least valuable animals to graze there.

If the animal is unaffected after 10 days or two weeks, the pasture probably is safe. But as a double check, the owner should keep close watch on the animal. He should also keep antidotes on hand which he can give as first aid before the veterinarian arrives.

Many of the noxious plants such as those subjected to poor pastures, or livestock that has been moved to new pastures.

Most state colleges supply good bulletins which help owners identify the common poisonous plants of their region. Or, any veterinarian will give information on seasonal poison plant hazards.

Plants cause many livestock losses.

Pal Tries to Aid Escape; Saws Hid in Peanut Butter

COVINGTON, KY.—Sawyer Flannery wasn't satisfied with being released from the Covington jail. He returned five hours later to gain a friend's release—with a jar of peanut butter.

Flannery, 23, who has no known address, was being held on a breach of peace warrant, was released from jail and instructed to leave the county, police said.

Instead, he returned later with a bag of goodies for James Sturgeon, Kenton county, held under $10,000 bond on charges of breaking and entering, and possessing a stolen automobile.

James Fox, turkey, became suspicious and saw the unknown man. Omar Klayman isn't a wise, young man of high repute.

One of the main reasons common, in pioneer days, did not grow as rapidly in the Tennessee Valley as in the southern and central part of the state was the impassability of Muscle Shoals during dry spells when the Tennessee River was low.

According to the U. S. Census of Manufacturers, Alabama industrial workers in 1937 earned a total of $96,058,401.

Following previous instructions from Clifford, Jackson said: "We made a mistake in his monthly statement last week. Do you happen to know whether he has it handy?"

The present city of Greenville was originally incorporated as Buttsville, named in honor of a Georgia volunteer, Capt. Samuel Butts, who was killed in action in the Battle of Calabee, January 27, 1814. The name was changed to Greenville in 1822 by the legislature at the request of a group of South Carolinians who settled the site.

The first religious address ever delivered in Blount County was a sermon preached by the Rev. Ebenezer Hearn in "Bear Meat Cabin" in 1816.

Brooklyn, Ala. was named for Brooklyn, Conn., the home town of Edwin Robinson. Robinson was an early settler at the present site of the little community.

Changing of Monikers Benefits Hollywood Stars

HOLLYWOOD—A rose by any other name may smell as sweet, but who could ever make a movie hero out of Western Van Kip? Western changed his name to Wilfred Parker, and under that name he was able to star in several movies, including the latest at Columbia, "David Harding, Counter-spy."

"An actor has to have a glamorous sounding name if he wants to be successful," Parker, or Van Kip, said.

How Rita Hayworth picked her screen name Parker doesn't know, but she's been a lot more successful with it than she was as Margaritha Casino. Gladys Smith trouped for several years as a child performer, but became internationally known as Mary Pickford.

Frances Gumm was a so-so vaudeville singer before she was re-named Judy Garland. Emma Matzo couldn't imagine that name on a theater marquee, so she changed it legally and professionally to Elizabeth Scott.

Ruby Stevens was an obscure chorus girl before she became Barbara Stanwyck. Her husband, Robert Taylor, changed his name from Spangler Arlington Brugh.

Joan Crawford, a movie star for a quarter of a century, was a chorus hooper under the name of Lucille Le Sueur. The late Carole Lombard was born Jane Peters. And the name Garbo decorated more theater marquees than Gretna Gustafson ever would have.

LAFF LINES

Man of Talents

THE CUSTOMER was being shaved in a country town to which he was a visitor, when the barber handed over a substantial tip.

"That's all right," said the visitor, with a smile of appreciation.

"This Woman's Intuition Proved to Be Correct"

MONCLAIR, FLA.—Maybe the male of the species has been unwarrantedly skeptical about woman's intuition all the time—for here's another instance of its being vindicated.

Mrs. R. A. Mallory told her husband on entering her home at night that a man was in the house.

A search revealed nothing. But after retiring, Mrs. Mallory told her husband she couldn't sleep knowing that a man was in the house.

This time Mallory looked under the bed. A prowler scrambled from the other side and fled out a window.

"Beg your pardon, but what is your name, sir?" the hotel clerk asked.

"Name!" echoed the indignant guest, who had just signed the register, "don't you see my signature there?"

"Of course," answered the clerk. "That's what aroused my curiosity."

Naturally

"CAN YOU NAME an animal that has eyes and cannot see, legs and cannot walk, but can jump as high as the Empire State Building?" asked the life of the party.

Everybody racked his brains during a period of deep silence, and necked in vain. Finally, they gave it up and demanded the solution.

"The answer," he said, "is a wooden horse. It has eyes and cannot see, and legs and cannot walk."

"Yes," the company agreed. "But how does it jump as high as the Empire State building?"

"The Empire State building," the humorist explained, "can't jump."

How True!

The preacher came along and wrote upon the signboard: "I pray for all."

The lawyer wrote underneath: "I plead for all."

The doctor added: "I prescribe for all."

The plain citizen wrote: "I pay for all!"
